APATS Coordinator Nominees

Cory
Campopiano

I am again honored to be nominated for an APATS coordinator position. I've now been at International School Bangkok for 5 years and will start my 6th year in August. Along with my 1 year I spent as an athletic trainer at WAB, I've been in Asia and a member of APATS for 6 years now...

Ngan Chung

The reason I would be an excellent coordinator for the Asia Pacific Athletic Trainers' Society is based on my strong skillset and experience in the role. My keen attention to detail and organizational skills will ensure events are planned and executed flawlessly...

Marc Voicechovski

Greetings, my name is Marc Voicechovski and I'm the Athletic Trainer from the United Nations International School of Hanoi. It's been an incredible and rewarding journey as I complete my 4th school year here at UNIS Hanoi, even though it actually feels like year one. Being the first AT at UNIS Hanoi, and in Vietnam...

Cory Campopiano

I am again honored to be nominated for an APATS coordinator position. I've now been at International School Bangkok for 5 years and will start my 6th year in August. Along with my 1 year I spent as an athletic trainer at WAB, I've been in Asia and a member of APATS for 6 years now. In my time at ISBangkok, I've been able to grow the athletic training position from the ground up and show the school and community how valuable our role is. It would be a great privilege to be given the chance to help progress the role of athletic trainers internationally just as previous coordinators and members have.

Ngan Chung

The reason I would be an excellent coordinator for the Asia Pacific Athletic Trainers' Society is based on my strong skillset and experience in the role. My keen attention to detail and organizational skills will ensure events are planned and executed flawlessly. My ability to communicate and collaborate with diverse groups of people, including international athletic trainers and healthcare professionals is instrumental in building a strong network for the Society. Overall, my combination of skills, experience, and passion makes me the perfect candidate for the role of coordinator for the Asia Pacific Athletic Trainers' Society.

Marc Voicechovski

Greetings, my name is Marc Voicechovski and I'm the Athletic Trainer from the United Nations International School of Hanoi. It's been an incredible and rewarding journey as I complete my 4th school year here at UNIS Hanoi, even though it actually feels like year one. Being the first AT at UNIS Hanoi, and in Vietnam that I know of, I've had the opportunity to build a comprehensive AT program/position which presented many challenges that required creativity, advocacy, and patience. I believe I will be a good addition to one of the coordinator positions because I've created and implemented similar initiatives that are aligned with APATS' vision & mission. Working directly with APATS, and the wider healthcare community, I will strive to improve strategic action planning that encompasses AT stewardship/growth, United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDG's), and DEIJ principles. Additionally, Southeast Asia representation and continued professional development opportunities is vital to demonstrating our value as essential healthcare providers in a rapidly growing region.
